MONDAY, FEBRUARY 22. 1742.

11: 2083.

Since our last arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Petersburg, Jan. 23. O.S.

THE following Account of what passed with respect to the State Prisoners, is taken from the Papers publish'd by Authority, and therefore all the Particulars contain'd therein may be depended upon.

On the 18th of this Month, about eight in the Morning, a Regiment of Foot, Part of the Garrison of this Capital, were drawn up round a Scaffold, which had been erected in the Square before the Senate House. About ten, Count Osterman, the Counts Munich, Goloskin, and Lowenwolde, Baron de Mengden, and the Privy-Councillor Chernicoff, who had been conducted from the Citadel to the Senate House, were brought into the Circle. Count Munich, at his first Entrance, bow'd to the Right and Left several Times, by way of Salute to the Officers and Soldiers of the Regiment. Count Osterman was so weak and faint that they were forc'd to support him. Four Soldiers took him up, and carried him to the Scaffold, where they sat him in a Chair that had been placed for him. His Sentence was then read to him, wherein it was set forth, That having been honour'd with the highest Confidence by the Emperor Peter the Great, the Empress Catherine, and the Emperor Peter II. he had abus'd their Favour; that his Ministry had been a continual Seties of Artifices, under the specious Pretexts of Religion and Probity; that he had caused the Ruin of many illustrious Families thro' his Jealousies and Suspicions; that he had shewn in many Instances his wicked Intentions in respect to the reigning Empress; that he had meditated several iniquitous Schemes destructive of the just Rights of her Imperial Majesty, and taken several Steps detrimental to the Reputation, and contrary to the Peace of the Empire, Crimes for which he was sentence'd to lose his Head. After this they bound his Eyes, and placed him in the posture in which he should have suffer'd. He had his Head upon the Block, and the Executioner had actually lifted up his Axe, when the Secretary of the Senate who had read the Sentence cried out Mercy, and told Count Osterman, that tho' he had render'd himself unworthy of the Empress's Clemency, yet her Imperial Majesty had been graciously pleas'd to spare his Life. Immediately after they read their Sentences to the rest of the Prisoners, importring, that tho' they had deserved Death, yet the Empress was pleased to spare their Lives and to content herself with sending them into Exile. Count Osterman was the only Person who mounted the Scaffold, and pass'd under the Hands of the Executioner, the rest remained in the Circle: (So that all that has been published to the contrary in the News Papers is false.)

All five are to pass the Remainder of their Days in Siberia; Count Osterman at Borosewa, near the Mouth of the River Oby, in the Houfe where Prince Menzikoff ended his Days; Count Munich at Relini, in the House built for the late Duke of Courland, and of which the Count himself drew the Plan; Count Goloskin at Jenefskoy, in the very Heart of Siberia; Count Lowenwolde at Tôbolski, the Capital of the Province; Baron Mengden at Tukuran, on the other Side of Jenefskoy. M. de Strelchneff, Brother-in-Law to Count Osterman, who appears to be less guilty than the rest, is banished also, but with this Distinction, that her Imperial Majesty has appointed him Governor of the Country in which these five Lords are to reside. Some other Prisoners received the Knutt, the Plette, or the Badges.

Petersburg, Jan. 23. Countess Osterman, Munich, Goloskin, and Madame Mengden, have all accepted the Czars's Permission of following their Husbands into Banishment. Count Osterman set forward the 19th; his two Sons and Daughter were allowed to go and take Leave of him at the Jemskoi, about five Werfts off. Every one of the Exiles, as well as their Wives, have had Leave to take with them four Suits of Cloaths, and two Dozen of Shirts, &c. in Proportion; and they will each of them be allow'd a Ruble per Day, and the tenth Part of one for every Servant, of which they have had Leave to take as many as they pleased. They are to be defrayed on the Road, and the Felt Marshal having express'd a Desire of taking his Domestick Chaplain with him, if he could have borne the Expence of his Salary and Journey, her Majesty immediately ordered him to be sent at hers, and he accordingly followed the next Evening. It is assur'd that Expresses have been dispatch'd to bring back the late Regent and all his Family, his Brothers Carl and Gustave, and his Brother-in-law General Bismarck and his Wife; and it is said that upon their Arrival at Moscow they will all be dismiss'd out of this Service, and be allow'd to retire out of the Country. On the 21st, News came here of the Arrival of the Duke of Holstein on the 11th at Dantzick, and that he was to proceed on his Journey hither the next Day; so that he is supposed to be already at Riga. Immediately after the Arrival of the Post, M. Lilliefeldt went to acquaint Prince Lewis that he might prepare for his Journey, and return'd again the same Evening to let him know that every thing would be ready for his setting out the next Afternoon, which he did last Night about 7 o'Clock, accompanied with the Chamberlain M. Lilliefeldt, and escort'd by a Lieutenant and 18 Soldiers. The Prince made the Chamberlain Puskin, who had serv'd him from his first Coming to the Change, a Present of a very handsome Diamond Ring. Her Majesty was Yesterday to see the late Grand Marshal Count Lowenwolde's Houfe, as she had been some Weeks ago to see that of the Felt Marshal Munich. She has given that in which she lived herself to the Chamberlain Vorozoff, who is to be married to Mademoiselle Shovrunski, a Relation of hers, and one of her Maids of Honour. The Felt Marshal Lacy is so well recover'd, that he was out this Morning to make his Court to her Majesty. Abraham Petrovitz Araboff, a Negro, who was made a Present of to Peter I. by a Captain of an English Ship, when his Majesty commanded the combin'd Fleet in the Sound, and whom he left at Paris in the Year 1717, to apply himself to Engineering and Mathematicks, and afterwards made, first, a Lieutenant in his Guards, and then a Captain of Bombardiers, being some Weeks ago return'd by the Grand Duches's Favour from the Banishment he was sent into in Peter II's time, has been made by her present Majesty a Major General, Commandant at Revel, and receiv'd a Present of 600 Boors about Pleskow.

Stockholm, Jan. 29. O.S. It is generally believ'd here, that notwithstanding Commissioners have been appointed to confer with the Russian Ministers, yet no Peace will follow, both Parties insisting positively on very high Terms. It is also given out, that we shall have an Army of 80,000 Men next Spring in Finland, and that we shall likewise send a very considerable Fleet to Sea.

Franfurt, Feb. 12. N.S. The Emperor continues still indispos'd, and keeps his Chamber; the Ceremony of the Empress's Coronation remains fix'd however for the 29th of this Month. His Imperial Majesty has nam'd the Prince of Mansfeld his Ambassador to the Pope, Count Ottingen to the Court of France, and Count Sinnesien to the States-General; and he will speedily name other Ambassadors to the Courts of Great Britain, Spain, Portugal, Sardinia, Russia, Sweden, and Denmark. Letters from Munich of the 16th advise, that they were in great Hopes the Austrians would quit that City, as soon as they had received the Sum stipulated in consideration of its not being plunder'd.

Vienna, Feb. 24. The Military Preparations in Hungary are carrying on with greater Vigour than ever, of which the Prussians however were so ill inform'd, that they attempted to make an Irruption into that King dom from Moravia, but were so very ill received, that it is believ'd they will not think of taking that Road again in haste. It begins to be whisper'd here, that the King of Prussia had once some Thoughts of entering into a new Treaty with the Queen our Sovereign, but that at present all Hopes of an Accommodation are lost; and it is certain that on the 7th instant his Batteries began to play on the City of Brin in Moravia, which however has a good Garrison, and it is said will be able to make a good Defence. We expect daily to hear that Count Khevenhuler with 1500 Men has enter'd Bohemia, and join'd our Army there, after which it is expected that some very extraordinary Enterprise will be undertaken. We have this Moment Advice, that seven Battalions of French Troops have been surrounded and cut to Pieces at Bunzel in Bohemia.

Genoa, Feb. 7. The third of this Month the Senate receiv'd an Express of the Arrival of the French and Spanish Squadrons on our Coast, upon which a Council was call'd that sat till very late; and it is said there were great Debates therein, as to the Manner in which we would salute these united Squadrons, in case they came to an Anchor in our Port. We have Advice from Turin, that the King of Sardinia appear'd to be a good deal mov'd at the News of the Elector of Bavaria's being chosen Emperor; but that, however, it was not be i' v'd that even this would oblige his Majesty to change his Measures. The Dispatches which the Government receives from Corsica are kept very secret, whence it is concluded that they are not fill'd with very good News; all we have been able to learn of their Contents is, that a Detachment of 300 Men of the Troops of the Republick, have fallen into an Ambuscade of the Rebels, and were entirely defeated.

Paris, Feb. 19. The last Advices from our Armies in Germany were none of the most agreeable, since they contained nothing more than Accounts of a great Sickness which reigns among the Troops, as well in Bavaria as in Bohemia, and that Multitudes are daily conducted to the Hospitals establish'd at Prague. They add indeed, that the Marshal de Broglio was march'd with the Army under his Command to attack the Austrians, so that the next Courier will certainly bring us News of a Battle. The Court will shortly go to Fontainebleau for six Weeks. Orders have been sent to Alsace, for 20000 Men to march from thence into Bavaria, thro' the Country of Baden and the Duchy of Wirtemberg, and it is said they will begin to move before the latter End of this Month. We have Letters from Cologne that inform us a great many Chefs full of Gold and Silver had been lately carried from the Low-Countries to Vienna. A Report has been lately spread, to which however we do not give entire Credit, that a Conspiracy has been discover'd at Prague, in which most of the Citizens were engaged, and also the greatest Part of the Students of the University. Their Design, it seems, was to have rose suddenly on the French and Bavarian Garrison on Ash-Wednesday, and after cutting their Throats would have open'd the Gates to General Konigsegg, who was advancing for that Purpose with several Regiments of Horse.

Hague, Feb. 25. The Baron Van Reischah, Minister from the Queen of Hungary, had Yesterday a Conference with a Committee of the States General, since which it is reported, that some very extraordinary Measures will be shortly taken for the Support of that Prince by several Powers. Our last Letters from Hamburg say, that the Swedish Army in Finland consists of about 60000 Men, that the Russians have not fewer than 100,000 in the Neighbourhood of Wyborg, and at least 30 or 40000 good Troops in the Duchy of Cour-

HOME PORTS.

LONDON, February 22.

As the Gazetteer-Legion never had any other Existence than in the Imagination of some of our Brother News-Writers, so they had certainlly a Right to disband the Troops they had rais'd, whenever they saw fit. With respect to other Reflections upon this Paper, we must take the Liberty of saying that they are very ill founded, our Pains and our Expence in procuring Intelligence useful to the Mercantile Part of the World having been much greater than that of our Neighbours; and as to the Conduct of the Gazetteer for the future, we hope, that if we deserve better of the Publick than most of our Brethren, we shall not be worse received; and in a just Confidence of this, we shall continue to use our utmost diligence and best Endeavours to please all Parties and offend none.
